He is as vicious as a wildcat. Yet sometimes he will stop in the middle of a mix-up and laugh his head off at some joke. Tommy West, when he had wo ribs broken by Walcott in the first round of a fifteen-round fight in England, began "kidding" Joe. "Did you ever live up in a tree?" asked West: "That's where you belong—up in a tree with a tail on you, swinging from branch to branch." Walcott began to chuckle, and at intervals throughout the fight West joshed the "Demon" until Joe laughed so hard he couldn't hit.

Walcott went out and fought. But he was more afraid of Smith than of O'Rourke. He was very careful not to land any more blows that might arouse Mr. Smith's ire.

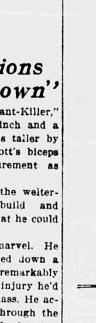

Walcott won his championship by knocking out Rube Ferns and lost it to Honey Mellody after the accident that destroyed the effectiveness of his deadly right. He is boxing still, nearly every week. But he'll never be a "giant-"
